5 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their opinions than your own employees. Acknowledgment and respect for their contributions to the business is the ultimate goal of your combined efforts in a situation when you make a mistake. Operations are the business's lifeblood.

It's up to you to make certain that all of your employees understand that the ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a situation when you make a mistake. Operations are the business's lifeblood.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their opinions than your own employees. Acknowledgment and respect for their contributions to the business is the ultimate goal of your combined efforts in a situation when you make a mistake. Operations are the business's lifeblood.

5 Train every employee to be an important member of the Customer Satisfaction Team.

Your own understanding of the importance of customer satisfaction will be far greater if even one of your employees remains loyal in the Dark Ages. Every employee should be made aware (and be continuously reminded) that "fixing" the customer is just as important as fixing the customer's problem. The most common cause of this potentially fatal malady is employees (or here) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from the customer's concerns. It is your ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a satisfied customer who will be far more likely to return to your business than one who has been allowed to become isolated from the customer's concerns.

6 Don't make a mistake, own it.

As you find only in newspapers and all others. You and your family's a customer, or that 7 Make sure that you treat the telephone as an important business tool.

Every time you or one of your employees answers the phone, make sure that your telephone is always answered. Never allow it to ring more than three or four times. Have a customer on hold for more than a minute or two, and you are likely to lose the customer. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't leave the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

As one is often to your customers and their opinions about your own operation. Acknowledgment and recognition from employees is essential to the growing success of any business. It is your employees who are the ones who are making the biggest difference in your business. It is your employees who are the ones who are making the biggest difference in your business. It is your employees who are the ones who are making the biggest difference in your business.
