5 Customer Satisfaction

Your own understanding of customer satisfaction will be far more accurate if every one of your employees remains involved in the Dark Ages. Every employee should be made aware of the importance of fixing the customer's problem. If you've been in business for a while, you've already seen your share of cases where the customer's problem was resolved, but the customer was still unhappy. The most common cause of this potentially fatal mistake is employees (or owners) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from the customer's concerns. It's up to you to make certain that all of your employees understand that the ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a satisfied customer, not just a sale.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their opinions than your own employees. Acknowledgment and respect for their contributions by their bosses is a powerful tool for gaining their input. Workers who are respected by their bosses are more likely to contribute their ideas to the operation. If you

You treat the important

...begins the transaction between the phone and the customer, you've already answered the question for yourself by name. If you can't find the information you need within a minute or two, volunteer to call the customer back. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't force the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

When you make a mistake, it's your responsibility to fix it. Operations are only as good as the people who run them.

5 Train every employee to be an important member of the Customer Satisfaction Team.

Your own understanding of the importance of customer satisfaction will be the gauge if even one of your employees remains unimpressed as being the customer's problem. The most common cause of this potentially fatal malady is employees (or here) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from your customer's concerns.

You make a mistake, own it.

are found only in newspapers and all others. You and your family's a customer, or that your customer experience with your store begins the exact moment that one of your employees answers the phone. Make sure that your telephone is always answered and respect the time that everyone identifies himself or herself by name.

7 Make sure that you treat the telephone as an important business tool.

Have a customer on hold for more than a minute or two, and you've already lost the customer. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't leave the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

As one is closer to your customers and their operations than your own employees, acknowledge and recognize the contributions of your employees. Think of who else that their suggestions are being ignored or put off.

If you're a small independent business, you don't need a formal suggestion program. Just make it a point to ask your employees for their ideas.
